Ranch and Residence Property Deals Made

Ten acres of oranges belonging to John B. Campbell on Lark Ellen street, north of San Bernardino road and south of the Southern Pacific track, has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lutyn of Idaho. The consideration was $18,500.

Mr. Campbell will continue to live in the residence on the ranch until late in the year. The Lutyn family will not arrive to take possession for some months. Mrs. Lutyn and baby were out here recently and closed the deal through Summerfield Douglas of the Covina Realty Company.

GREENLEAF RANCH SOLD

Ten acres of navel at the corner of Rowland avenue and Hollenbeck street, the property of E. R. Greenleaf, sold this week to George B. Leslie for $12,500. This is considered to be one of the "best buys" of the year. The deal was made through the real estate agency of R. A. Welch.

Mr. Greenleaf and wife lived on this ranch for a number of years, during which time Mr. Greenleaf became well known as an architect. He drew plans for a number of buildings here, including the new building for the Covina Orange Growers' Association. He is now in business in San Francisco.

COMPTON MAN BUYS

Ten acres of the old Olmstead place on Juanita avenue, near Glendora, belonging to Z. P. Olmstead, has been sold this week, the purchaser being D. K. Myers of Compton.

It is understood that the sale was made directly by Mr. Olmstead, and although the consideration was not named, it is said that the ranch was sold at a very good price, as it is in excellent condition. It is about one-half navel and one-half valencia, reckoned as very fine foothill fruit.

Mr. Myers will not move onto the property until the summer, and the place will be cared for by Alfred Olmstead.

RESIDENCE SOLD

The residence and lot of J. L. Moxley on the south side of San Bernardino road above First street in Covina city has been sold this week to B. L. King, whose ranch adjoins the property. The consideration was $3750. Mr. Moxley will continue to live in the house for the present. The property was originally a part of the ranch owned by King.

GROWERS MAY ACQUIRE LARGE TIMBER TRACT

W. M. Griswold, manager of the Covina Fruit Exchange, left Wednesday of this week with a party of Exchange directors to spend a number of days in Lassen county in Northern California.

The directors will look over a great tract of timber which has been offered for sale to the Growers' Supply Company for shock material. The supply company is a subsidiary company to the California Fruit Growers' Exchange. This concern has for many years operated sawmills and equipment on timber lands purchased by the growers in this territory.

JEROME REYNOLDS AND WIFE BACK FROM LONG TRIP

A honeymoon trip that occupied nearly six months of travel has been completed this week through the return to Covina of Jerome Reynolds and his wife, who was formerly Alma Whitaker, a well-known newspaper writer connected with the Los Angeles Times.

The journey included time spent in the Hawaiian islands, several weeks in Japan and in China, a pleasant stay on the island of Borneo and visits throughout the Malay peninsula. In Australia they were splendidly entertained and saw much of interest, but it was a visit somewhat subdued on account of the influenza epidemic. The people were all wearing flu masks at this time.

Mr. Reynolds says that Japan has been very prosperous, and there are indications that the empire of little brown men is forging rapidly to the front. It was not possible for the trip to be extended to the continent, on account of the extreme difficulty in getting into England and France because of war conditions.

Sherman Gail Is Back From Rhine Country

After eighteen months of service, which included participation in the battles of St. Mihiel, the Argonne and the occupation period in the Rhine territory, Sherman Gail returned to Covina Wednesday. He is the son of Attorney and Mrs. F. W. Gail of Navilla Place, and is a law partner with his father and with Attorney A. M. Pence.

Gail is twenty-seven years old, and was ordered into active service on January 18, 1918, going to Berkeley, where he was instructed for six weeks in the work of the ordinance corps. During all his overseas service he was attached to the advance ammunition section of the first army. He had a splendid opportunity throughout the great deciding battles of the American troops to see and participate in these history-making events.

While in the Rhine country with the army of occupation he had leisure that he employed in travelling through the occupied country and in Northern France on leave. Gail says that the Germans in the Rhine country were never so prosperous and satisfied as they have been during the occupation by American troops, and ventures the statement that the Germans in that district would be glad to have the occupation extend indefinitely. The country is a rich farming district. The people are glad of a strict, responsible government. He returned on the Manchuria and was discharged at San Francisco.

Gail entered the army as a private and came out with the stripes of a sergeant. He is a graduate and post-graduate of the University of Southern California law school.

As reported last week Sergeant Gail was in the Omaha wreck of a troop train, when several hundred men were thrown into the river. He escaped without injury.

COLONEL THURBER BACK HOME WITHIN FEW WEEKS

Mrs. P. L. Thurber of Second street received a cablegram this week from her husband, Colonel Thurber, now with the American forces in France, informing her that he expected to receive within a few days orders to return to America.

Colonel Thurber, who is the youngest colonel in the American regular army, went to France shortly after war was declared. He has seen much active service and his promotion has been rapid.

BAPTISTS HOLD WIEBIE BAKE IN SAN GABRIEL CANYON

Over one hundred members of the Baptist church and congregation, together with their friends, enjoyed a wienie bake in the San Gabriel canyon last Wednesday evening. The affair was in the nature of a celebration for year. W. L. Smith was chairman of the committee on arrangements, and automobile conveyance was provided for all who did not have cars of their own. When the guests began to arrive, shortly after 6 o'clock, they found a great fire blazing and coffee boiling, under the supervision of H. L. Healy, the chairman of the refreshment committee. After the satisfying supper, the pastor conducted a devotional service in which many took part. Then the crowd broke up into groups to enjoy themselves as their inclinations led, the most of them gathering around the fire and singing old-time songs. The stars were out and the great moon just rolling up over the mountains when the happy crowd departed for home, having agreed to repeat this pleasant experiment again after the summer vacation.

The newly-elected officers of Covina commandery, Knights Templar, were installed with befitting ceremonies by the grand commander of the state of California, Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe, on Thursday evening of last week. The installation ceremonies were of a semi-public character, a number of visiting knights and their wives being present.

Preceding the installation the boys' drill team of the Covina Masonic home gave an exhibition on the floor of the assembly. The closing address of Judge Bledsoe, an appeal for the endorsement of the proposed League of Nations, was listened to with interest.

LIBERTY LOAN WORKERS IN DRIVE FOR BOY SCOUTS

Yesterday and today an active campaign is being made for associate members for the Boy Scout movement throughout the United States. The local drive is in charge of Dr. J. D. Reed and Mrs. J. L. Matthews, the respective chairmen of the men's and women's Liberty Loan committees.

The United States government asks that a million new associate members of the National Council of Boy Scouts of America shall be enrolled by tonight. The cost per membership is one dollar. The funds thus raised are to be used for extending Scouting to the multitude of eight or ten million members. Your dollar membership will make it possible to extend to eight or ten American boys the training and discipline of the Boy Scouts.

BEAUTIFYING GROUNDS ON NORTH GRAND AVENUE

Mr. Frank Chance, the baseball magnate, has a force of men at work beautifying the yard space in front of his beautiful residence fronting on Grand avenue, north-east of Covina. The grounds were laid out by a landscape engineer, and the design once developed as intended will enhance the beauty of the premises.

A cooked food sale will be held Friday afternoon, June 20th, in the clubhouse, beginning at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of the war activities committee of the Monday Afternoon club. The doors will not be open until 2 o'clock, and no articles will be laid aside for anyone ahead of time. The money is to go into the French war orphan fund.

Mr. John Funk, formerly of this district, now of Blythe, California, where he is engaged in farming, made a business trip to Covina this week. Mr. Funk's health has much improved, and he is delighted with the business opportunities which the Blythe country offers to the hustler.

LAUGHS AND THRILLS PLENTIFUL IN SCHOOL PLAY, "MARY JANE'S PA"

Heart-throbs and laughs intermixed in this year's high school junior-senior play made it a success that from every standpoint was perhaps just a little better than in years past. Townspeople who have attended these high school plays year after year invariably get a renewed surprise at the real excellence of the performers.

That the high school age is the golden time for amateur theatricals is shown each year by new talent. In this production, given last Friday and Saturday nights, there was ample opportunity for keen teachers of humor as well as for the subtle human interest that runs through every dramatization of American country life.

"Mary Jane's Pa" is a human interest story. It deals with actualities in American life that appeal immediately to an audience because they are scenes that are understood. The story of "Mary Jane's Pa" is based on the character of a never-do-well married man who had the wanderlust in his veins, and who went away and left his wife and children to shift for themselves. "Hiram Perkins" was clever and he was sciable and very good company, but family life pulled on him, and he went away, only to come back some time later, just at a time when he could be of service to his struggling wife.

"Portia Perkins," the wife, was a character very admirably taken by Lucinda Beatty, and the shifless husband was played by Clifton McKay. These leads were both finely portrayed. "Mary Jane Perkins," the little nine-year-old daughter, was a very humorous and ingenious part played very well by Emogene Arthur.

The character of Lucile Perkins was taken by Constance Ricketts; Ivy Wilcox by Geneva McHann; Miss Faxon by Louise Lombard; Rome Preston by Earl Colver; Barrett Sheridan by Robert Runyon; Joel Skinner by Edson

Letchworth; Star Skinner by Robert Broadwell; Claude Whitcomb by Wesley Leighton; Line Watkins by Joseph Newlin; Eugene Merritt by Irving Anderson; Lewellen Green by Irving Parker; John Whipple by Stanley Shaver.

The woman who had been so indifferently left behind to earn a living started in an adjoining town to get out a newspaper. The play hinges upon these scenes in the print shop, when unscrupulous politicians who attempt to suppress the newspaper are prevented from doing so by the return of the never-do-well husband, who goes to work as a tramp printer, and finally helps to bring about the downfall of the scheming politicians. In the scenery used by the scholars in producing this play some real printing presses and other print shop paraphernalia were used, having been generously loaned by the Baldwin Park Bulletin.

Exceptionally good numbers were rendered by the high school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Bertha McKay. The business manager of the affair was Irving Anderson, assisted by Miss Ruby Wheeler. The play was directed by Miss Irene Patterson, teacher of literature. She was assisted by the junior class teacher, Miss Crystal Gates, and by Miss McKay, senior class teacher. The teachers say that much credit should be given to Mr. Hart for his assistance in making stage properties, and to Miss Vinnie Gee for dramatic assistance. A surprise vocal number was the one rendered by Miss Frances Havlin.

The school auditorium, both on Friday and Saturday nights was crowded to the doors. The seat sale had to cease before the performances as the house was sold out ahead of time. The scholars and teachers should certainly be congratulated by the townspeople on making such a marked success of this annual entertainment.

DAY HONORED BY WELSHMEN

March the First Known the World Over as Anniversary of the Country's Patron Saint.

The first day of March has long been observed as a special day by the people of Wales and is called St. David's day in honor of the good St. David, patron saint of the Welsh, who lived in the sixth century.

St. David was said to have been the son of a prince of Cardiganshire, Wales, and is accredited with the working of many miracles, especially among the poor of the country. It was said that when the saint first went into the fields to preach to his followers the ground on which he was standing began to rise until it assumed a goodly height, and henceforth was his pulpit.

For hundreds of years the Welsh wore sprigs of leek—a plant with broad bluish-green leaves and yellow flower clusters—in their hats as a symbol of recognition of the day. This custom was brought about, some say, from the fact that in a battle of the Welsh against their old enemies, the Saxons, St. David had ordered all Welshmen to go into battle wearing their native leek, not only to distinguish them from their enemies, but to bring them good luck.

Other writers argue that the badge was worn more as a fraternal sign and because leek was grown in every Welsh garden and was the favorite vegetable of a true Welshman.

Writers of the last century depict a typical Welsh garden as a garden of onions, garlic and leek. Homely incidents are told of Welshmen assisting each other in farming and eating their leeks together, a ceremony symbolic of hospitality and good fellowship.

NOT ALWAYS PROPERLY SANE

Scientists Assert Few People Have at All Times Full Command of Their Mental Faculties.

Many people think that the expression "temporary insanity" is merely used by a jury wishing to save relatives pain, but numbers of doctors who have made a study of mental disorders emphatically declare it is no idle term.

One doctor has stated that temporary insanity is a condition of double consciousness, not dissimilar to epilepsy. A person normally quite sane may have attacks of temporary aberration lasting little more than a few minutes, especially after long bouts of hard, continuous mental work, being particularly liable if insomnia supervenes.

Crimes have been committed in the early morning when the perpetrator has not really been properly awake, and has been horrified to find what he has done. This is a true case of temporary insanity, but it is comparatively rare, and a man in normal health would not suffer in this way.

A specialist in mental diseases has stated that he knew a case in which a person was insane during a certain time of each day, and that others have been known when the patient was quite normal at ordinary times, but suffered from a temporary fit of mania regularly once a month.

Forming Artificial Pearls.

Pearls were valuable as gems in China as early as twenty-two centuries before our era, and the Chinese had worked out a plan for the artificial formation of pearls about 700 years ago, which they have carried on extensively. Large numbers of oysters are collected and the shell gently opened to allow the introduction of various foreign substances which are inserted by means of a forked bamboo stick. These pellets are generally made of prepared mud, but may be bone, brass or wood. The oysters are then placed in shallow ponds connected with canals and are nourished by tubs of night soil thrown in from time to time.

Some time later, from several months to two years, depending upon the size of the gem desired, these oysters are taken out of the shell, the pearls removed and the body of the animal eaten as food. Millions of such pearls are sold annually in China. The most valuable are either round or pear shaped.

Few Old People in New Guinea.

The average duration of life is shorter in New Guinea than in any other country, owing to the peculiar diet of the natives, who devour with gusto the larvae of beetles, dug out of decayed tree trunks, and habitually drink seawater when near the coast. "The people die off at about forty," A. E. Pratt says in his "Two Years Among the Cannibals of New Guinea." "We saw one very old man, who may have been about sixty years of age—the only example of longevity that we came across. He was bent almost double, and had a long, white beard. His fellow tribesmen regarded him as a great curiosity, and brought him to see us. Despite the decrepitude of his body, however, there was no trace of senility; his senses were unimpaired, and the poor old creature showed great gratitude for a gift of tobacco."

Hence the Congestion.

"You have plenty of room in America," said the foreign visitor.

"Oh, yes."

"Then why do you build so many skyscrapers?"

"I guess that's because the average American thinks he can't transact business unless he's within walking distance of the post office."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

AGENT EXPLAINS WHAT MAKES AUTOMOBILE RUN

"There is hardly one driver of an automobile in a hundred who really knows what makes his car run," said D. C. Kirby this week. "Ninety-nine per cent of the people you meet will say that their car is operated by explosions in the cylinders.

"As a matter of fact, nothing even remotely resembling an explosion takes place in an automobile engine when the gasoline vapor is ignited by the spark. Every gas engine is a heat engine and derives its power from converting the heat used into heat. It is the expansion of the heated gases in the cylinders that results in the impulses necessary to run the motors.

"So far as the motor is concerned, a gallon of gasoline represents so many heat units, and the greater the percentage of these heat units that can be converted into power, the greater the efficiency of the engine and the power the cost of operation.

"The combustion of the gasoline in the cylinders is a comparatively slow operation. This is the reason for advancing the spark. When the spark is advanced the combustion is started before the piston reaches the upper half of its stroke. Thus the full force of the expanding gas is utilized the instant the piston begins its downward journey.

"One of the secrets of the remarkable performance of the new Essex is the care taken to utilize the heat generated from every drop of fuel. As a result the motor develops more than fifty horsepower although it is only rated at eighteen, and is only twenty-nine inches in length over all.

"The manifold carrying the carburetor is bolted directly to the head of the cylinders and the inward passages are given a downward slope from the carburetor through the valves. Perfect conditions for starting are thus obtained, together with the greatest efficiency since the combination of gravity flow of the mixture and the hot manifold insures distribution and complete combustion of the fuel. Every drop of fuel is atomized and burned."

Let's Keep Going Ahead

In the old days neighbors that were a half mile away were in comparison much more distant from us than they now are when they live at the other end of the valley.

Folks get into their car of an evening and drive over to see the wife's sister's people in Pasadena, and return in time to be asleep by ten o'clock. When midsummer comes the man who is making lots of money down in the Imperial valley drives up in a day with his wife and family, stays a few days himself and goes back again, making Saturday and Sunday runs up several times during the summer, while his folks enjoy the breezes at Santa Monica.

There is nothing more enjoyable than an automobile trip across the state with a good machine and some canvas to sleep under at night. The Yosemite is the mecca of thousands this year, who reach it in this way.

What makes it possible? The good roads of California make it possible. And there are certain parts of the state that can be reached easily, there are thousands of square miles of wonderful territory not properly served with good roads.

That is the reason why the state is asking the people to vote a bond issue. The election will come on July 1. The state wants to vote twenty million dollars to complete the present system of roads as begun through other bond issues, and to open up a great amount of additional territory with twenty million dollars more.

These bonds are to run for forty years, with the first retirement coming in 1955. This state is very prosperous at the present time, but the prosperity is not a circumstance to what it is going to be.

We will never be sorry for any money that we put into good roads. Don't neglect to speak about the election to your friends and neighbors.

Mrs. May Kirk of Los Angeles will spend the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hull. Miss Edith Hull, who teaches in Arizona, is expected home Saturday. She with six other teachers from Arizona are making the trip from Arizona through the Grand canyon by auto as the guests of a member of the school board.

BALM FOR THE DISHWASHER

According to Writer, Happy is the Man Allowed to Help in Cleansing the Table Utensils.

We have never held with those who think dishwashing a dreary and sordid task, according to Collier's. Give us plenty of hot water, plenty of some abrasive soap and a couple of clean cloths and we will tackle the debris of the evening meal with keen enjoyment. After a long day at the office it is delightful to steep one's hands in hot dishwater (which acts as an excellent febrifuge for the brain and a tonic for weariness of the body) and pass through the purifying and homely gestures of ablution and wiping. These simple tasks of the hand always induce a pleasant and domestic train of thought. We know one poet, and not such a bad poet either, who always says he can write his best lyrics after a bout with the evening dishes. And no manicurist ever gives so pink and charming a glow to the hands as a half-hour with the dishpan.

How many husbands, we wonder, have learned the first rule of the dishwasher's technique? You must have plenty of hot water, but always use cold water on any utensils where eggs have been broken. Heat hardens the yolk, and boiling water poured upon an egg-smeared plate will so solidify and solder the juices that it will take sandpaper to remove them.

If any husband should ever protest against being asked to wash the dishes let his wife refer him to II Kings, 21:13.

AVENGED HIS POISONED PET

Mean Way in Which Owner of Mauding Cat Got Even With Its Executioner.

A member of a certain national organization was laughing over certain attacks on the institution.

"These attacks," he said, "are clever—clever but crooked. They bring a story to my mind.

"A man owned a big black cat that used to sneak off to the butcher's and steal meat. The butcher warned the man to keep his thieving cat at home, but no attention was paid to the warning, and so finally the butcher declared:

"If that pesky cat steals any more of my stock I'll poison it."

"Well, a few days later the cat made off with a leg of lamb, and the butcher, true to his word, sprinkled bits of poisoned steak about. The next morning the black cat lay cold and stiff before its master's door.

"The cat's owner waited till the butcher shop was crowded with sausage buyers. Then he tucked the corpse under his arm and strode in through the crowd.

"Here you are, John," he said, slamming the dead cat down on the meat block, beside the sausage machine. "Here you are. That makes 78. I'll fetch in the 22 others in the course of the day."

Brothers Visit Via Aeroplane in France

Toul, M et M., May 21, 1919.

Dear Father:

I know you will be interested to know of the visit I have just had with Howard. On Wednesday night of this week a lieutenant called me on long distance from Neuwid and said that I could look for Captain Douglas by the air route the next day. You can imagine that I kept my ears and eyes on the alert the following morning. Several ships went over on their way down from Germany to Colombey les Belles, which is a big aviation field south of Toul. None of these sized Toul, so I knew that none of them would likely be Howard. About two in the afternoon I got a phone call and Howard spoke and said that Captain Lambert and he were downtown in Toul, getting some lunch. The Toul field is north of the city and they had landed direct, so I missed seeing them come in.

After they had lunched we drove out to the field and Captain Lambert took me up for a ride. The day was fine and I was familiar with the country we went over, so I enjoyed every moment of the flight. We went over Nancy and on the return Captain Lambert did a few stunts over the fort of St. Michel. I lost all sense of equilibrium for a few moments, but it was great all the same. After we came down Howard decided to go on to Colombey, as everything is gone from this field at Toul and they needed gas, and it would be necessary to have the ship overhauled by a mechanic before making the return trip.

In the evening I drove over to Nancy and met them there and we had supper and later came back here to Toul. In the morning I took them out in one of my machines (Henry Ford product) to Colombey. Howard's old squadron, the 88th, were all there and packed ready for a home port. They gave him a hearty greeting and said they wished he were going with the outfit too. At eleven Captain Lambert and he took off and started on their way back to Germany. The distance is about 175 miles and it takes about one hour and forty-five minutes to make it. Howard was acting as pilot both ways, and I hope they got back safely. He has wanted to get a pilot's brevet, but up until now he has been so busy that it has been hard for him to get in his required number of hours in the air. He was going to make his first solo flight today. Up until this time he has always flown a dual control machine and it is a big step when a man goes up by himself for the first time. He likes the game, but my desires for him are not strong.

I went on to Neufchateau yesterday and attended to some business at G. R. B. headquarters and on my return trip went around by the way of Domremy and paid a visit to the house where Joan D' Arc was born. The country around there is very picturesque, and it is not hard to imagine the shepherd maiden and her vision in such a locality. France is at her best right now, with the fruit trees in bloom and a wonderful profusion of wild flowers. Away from some of the main highways that led to the fronts the roads are simply great. The country is all low hills and valleys, and every few miles is a village that is as pretty as a picture from the distance.

Toul was the headquarters for the second army during war times and great things were planned to have taken place from here at about the time the armistice was signed. Before the war there was a military population of over 20,000 and they were all housed in immense barracks. The place is very old and is surrounded by walls and moats, and the exits are all through fortified gates.

My work is just about completed and I expect to return with my men to Langres about Thursday of next week, and soon after that we will be starting for one of the ports and the U. S. A. I will sure be glad to get back. It is just two years ago today that I left Covina for government service.

It will seem strange to return to civilian life once more and readjust myself to new conditions. All who are over here now feel that they are losing time and opportunity in making the big start in life again, but it cannot be helped, and the work had to be done here before it could be called a job well done.

We hope to move out from Langres about the 15th of June, and the trip back should be faster than the one over, so I may get home for the fourth of July. Here's hoping!

With best wishes, I am
Your loving son,
GORDON.

O.K.—G. D. Douglas, 1st. Lt. Engrs.

SCISSORS TEST BEST WAY TO JUDGE TUBE QUALITY

"The scissors test is the most dependable way of ascertaining the exact quality in a tire tube that has ever been devised," declares the manager of the local Norwalk tire and tube service station, Mr. L. J. Barber.

"The scissors test can be easily made. All that is necessary is to take a small test strip of rubber one-quarter inch wide by three inches long. It should be stretched to nine inches, or three times its original length, and snipped on edge with a pair of blunt-pointed scissors. The cut should not be more than one-eighth inch across the sample. If the strip of rubber tears apart it is proof that the rubber is of an inferior grade, and will not give the right kind of service inside the tire. A good tube—one that contains 95 per cent pure gum, will not tear after being snipped. To further test the rubber for quality, it can be set in water and if it fails to float the rubber is inferior. If it floats you can rest assured that it contains over 95 per cent pure gum.

"The scissors test is becoming famous throughout the country as the one dependable way of testing tube rubber for quality and strength."

Rancher Writes About Tractors and Drivers

In the good old days when farmers disturbed the earth with horse power, neighbors used to greet each other something after this fashion: "Hello, Bill, how is the folks?" Now it is, "Hello, Bill, how is your tractor?"

Then Bill, whose pockets are bulging with expensive parts that he came to town to get to make the thing go, begins to prattle like a bum gas meter working overtime, about the wonderful results he is getting from the only tractor worth while. Many a rancher has put a crimp in his finances to purchase the best tractor money will buy and he goes out and cultivates his grove over a couple of times, when he is informed that the company has gotten out a new model, and when he goes it he scarcely recognizes it by his machine. When the savvy agent visited him he was assured that this was the only machine that had a force feed for an oiling system and the oil was used only once and dropped on the ground. The story he told sounded quite good and you fell for it, when you knew that all autos used the splash system and it worked very successfully. When you see the new model you find it equipped with the splash system.

With the advent of the tractor comes a new class of help, the tractor driver. Tractor schools have been opened where a young fellow can learn all there is to know about this new system of cultivation.

The object of this school is to fit the student to do anything to the tractor from driving it to overhauling its most complicated parts.

The net results of this college course ends up by fitting him to do things to that tractor which come very high and makes good business for the garage men.

With his certificate of graduation he comes to the innocent and unsuspecting and they finally fall for him. He is just the man they think they need, and though the price is rather stiff, he is employed before someone else gets him.

He gets the thing in action in a way that makes you think he is the missing link, and a feeling of peace comes over you.

Just as soon as he is well out of earshot he begins to monkey with the carburetor. He gives her a few turns and she shows signs of quitting. He hastily turns it back again but he does not know just how many turns he gave it, and the engine is not working well.

He informs you that the valves need grinding and orders you to get a can of 4-11-44 and some 600, and you are pleased to know that you do not have to send to the garage and have one of those hold-up fellows come out and do the work and charge you from the time they begin to think about it until they get back and forget about it.

He tells you that he was the head mechanic over at the Langh-a-lot ranch and he is going to make that old bus run better than she did when she came from the factory.

The operation is completed and somehow the results are not when you hoped they might be. In fact the thing refuses to get busy.

When you get the sum total of his experience you find that he filed a plow point over at the Ticked-to-death ranch and it submerged most beautifully, and this leads him to believe that he can grind in valves. When he comes to putting on the block he fails to screw it down tight, and most people familiar with gas machines of this character know what happened. A long-distance call is put in for the agent to come out and start the thing. He very soon discovers that vital parts necessary to make it go are back in the warehouse, and he has to drive back and get them, all at your expense.

He informs you that this is an old model and you should have it overhauled and made an up-to-date machine. The front wheels are too heavy. The sprockets wheels and the chain are too tight. The clarifier is a back number and the grousers should be pieced out, and it will cost in the neighborhood of $250. These improvements are all to be put in at cost, but you would not notice it by the bill.

The above was the experience of a widow, and it is the experience of many tractor owners.

Whenever you see radical changes in a tractor that the dear suffering public have been buying, you can make up your mind that these dear people have been used to demonstrate the merits of the thing and that it did not pan out as hoped for.

Whenever an agent comes to you with a proposition to remodel your machine and put in a lot of things that he admits were not strong enough or did not work well, it is an admission that the machine is defective, and if the outfit really means to play fair with you they will remodel that machine and stand the loss themselves. If they don't do this they are making you pay for their mistakes, and what you need in a driver is a man that has sense enough to turn to the right when he wants to go that way, and to the left if he is traveling that way, and to stop the thing before it slams into a tree and you have to get an ax and cut the tree down to crank it up.

Regardless of his certificate of graduation I would go over the oiling chart with him and show him every part that needed oiling, and instruct him as to how often it should be attended to, and then I would ask him to let things alone, aside from screwing up a nut if he saw one that was about to fall off and cause trouble.

After he had attended to these necessary things, the prime object in your having him is to keep the machine moving at a rate of speed that will not burn it up, and if he can do this he will be a valuable man.

The man that is competent to overhaul your machine and put it in first class shape is not driving tractors, but has a job in a garage where he is drawing down a salary you could not afford to pay a driver, and the man that comes to you soliciting a job on those terms needs to give a few references.

When trouble overtakes you, get together all your ready cash, including your Liberty bonds, and take them to the garage man that you know is competent to do the job, and then take something to dull the pain and have it over. He may look up your rating with Bradstreet or Dunn, for he knows that the job will go beyond your assets, but in the end it will pay.

The tractor school may be a good thing, but the fellow with horse sense will have tractor sense, and the driver that can keep his fingers off of things he does not understand, and that are working all right, will be the fellow that will cover the most ground and give the best satisfaction.

MARTIN FESLER.

MARGUERITE CLARK IN WAR SCENES AT STAR THEATER

MARGUERITE CLARK in "Out of a Clear Sky"
A Paramount Picture

There is something striking in the comparison between little Marguerite Clark and the incredibly rough and coarse surroundings of battlefields and filthy German troops. And it is the strangeness of the surroundings of this diminutive star that perhaps brings much of the thrill in "Out of a Clear Sky," the Paramount photoplay that will appear Friday and Saturday nights at the Star theater.

In this picture the heroine enacts scenes that have actually occurred during the war on the French front and in Belgium. She is supported by Thomas Meighan, one of the best actors that ever supported this popular star.

There will be a Harold Lloyd comedy each night. The management is making a special effort to give Marguerite Clark's war picture a fine audience this week.

Lincoln-Douglas Debate Related to Club Women

A somewhat unusual program was given at the meeting of the Monday Afternoon club this week, when graphic glimpses of sixty years ago were given by Mrs. H. D. Bentley of Pasadena in her "Echoes From the Lincoln-Douglas Debate," as told her by her father and mother. Gowned in the costume of that day, the speaker made a pretty picture all in pastel shades, in her full-skirted silk dress, cream lace fichu, black lace shawl, hooded handbag, old-time jewelry and lace mitts, hair powdered, with side curls, and a pink rose tucked low behind one ear. The entire costume, including the hoop skirt, was one worn by Mrs. Bentley's mother at a large social affair at the time of the great debate.

The story of the political excitement attending the historic debate between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas at Freeport, Illinois, on August 27, 1858, and which cost the latter the presidency was told in a conversational way, many little incidents being related which made the whole story very vivid. One could see the crowds, some twenty thousand, many of them coming in county delegations from great distances, read the banners and almost hear the blare of the brass bands as the people marched through the streets of the little city on that memorable summer day. Douglas was driven to the village green, where the debate took place in the finest carriage obtainable, drawn by six shining black horses. A handsome man, finely dressed, Douglas was the idol of the Democrats and always made a favorable impression, contrasting sharply with "Honest Abe Lincoln," who was tall, awkward and cared little for the minor niceties of dress. He rode, standing in an old pioneer lumber wagon, his driver controlling and guiding the six white horses with a single line and the old-time "gee-haw" method from the back of the right wheel horse. While Douglas smiled and affably returned the cheers of his admirers, Lincoln was serious and sober as he bowed in acknowledgment of the people's salutes.

This Freeport debate, one of four between these intellectual giants, all upon the question of slavery, was of the gravest importance historically and has been preserved for this country by Robert Hitt, John Hay and John Nicolay, while Churchill, the English novelist, has immortalized the dramatic incident in fiction. Lincoln opened the debate, asking just four critically important questions, not all of which Douglas, in his spirited rejoinder, could answer. Then at the last, Lincoln had the final half hour for clinching his arguments. The crowd stood spell-bound at the simple, strong eloquence of Lincoln, and the fate of the two men, if not the fate of the nation, was decided that day.

Just before the talk Carroll Nye gave Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and the story, from "The Tribute to a Perfect Life" of its production and effect.

The music for the afternoon was in keeping with the general program, Miss Dorothy Duke singing a group of old songs, "Just a Song at Twilight," "Last Night the Nightingale Woke Me" and "Genevieve." She was accompanied by Mrs. George Phillips. Mrs. David Watson gave a piano number, "Spring Dawn," written by that dean of American music, Dr. William Mason, in the fifties. She also responded to the appreciation of the audience with two selections from McDowell.

The flowers used in the decorations were the graceful sprays of Dorothy Perkins roses, arranged by Mrs. Floyd Wilson and Mrs. C. E. Crawford. The club secretary, Mrs. Carl Shirley, wore a quaint old gown of sixty years ago, which added to the setting of the reminiscent program.

Next week's meeting will be the last of the club year and will be interesting to many, since it is to be "book day," when Mrs. Mary M. Coman will discuss some of the most worth-while books of the year, among them being "Home Fires of France," "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "Sonia," "Shavings," "The Magnificent Ambersons," "A Woman's Woman," "Tree of Heaven," "Lila," "Roll Call," "Joan and Peter," "Jimmy the Sixth," "Joel Chandler Harris' biography by his daughter," "A Writer's Recollections," Mrs. Humphrey Ward, "Education of Henry Adams," in history, "Modern and Contemporary History" and "Europe since 1815." If there is time, three or four other books will be mentioned. Brief reports from the state convention will be given, and as there is important business as well, every member is urged to be very prompt in attendance.

A committee was appointed by the club to acquaint the city trustees of the club's approval of the district health plan as outlined by Dr. Pomeroy at last week's meeting, Mrs. J. N. Wilson, as chairman of civics, heading the committee of women who are within the city limits.

Three new members, Mrs. H. D. Seppings, Mrs. Elmer King, and Mrs. J. I. Cone, were elected into the club.

Associated Chambers Indorse Bond Election

Without doubt the largest crowd in the history of the associated chambers of commerce of the San Gabriel valley gathered on Tuesday evening at Alhambra, when that city was host to the members of the organization.

Jonathan S. Dodge, chairman of the Los Angeles county board of supervisors, was a speaker who commanded the attention of the assembled ranchers and business men of the valley. His subject was that of the coming bond election to be held by the state, when the people will be asked to vote forty million dollars for an extension of the present good roads system. Mr. Dodge is earnestly advocating that these bonds be authorized.

The principal arguments presented by the supervisor were of the nature of economics, pointing out the tremendous gain in past years through the opening of territory for trucking produce to market, and the increase in the valuation of lands contiguous to the state and county roads. The enormous advantage to the state, not only from the tourist standpoint, but from the direct standpoint of the property-owner and business man living in the state was pointed out. The election is to be held on July 1, and the bonds will run for forty years, with the first ones maturing in twenty-five years. Los Angeles county, the supervisor said, had spent seven and one-half million dollars for good roads in addition to what had been directly paid for by abutting property owners.

The assembly, through a motion offered by J. L. Matthews of Covina, indorsed the proposed bond issue by standing when requested on roll call. The indorsement was declared to be unanimous.

Engineer Jones of Claremont, chairman of the flood control committee of the associated chambers, made a report, in which he advocated that the state money, amounting to $1,080,000, which supplements the county bond issue for flood control be divided on the same territorial basis as had been the case with the county money. Of the county issue, $1,557,532 had been apportioned to the east end of the county, from the Narrows near Whittier to the eastern boundary of the county, he said. This was thirty-five per cent of the bond issue. He believed that pressure should be brought to bear to get an equal amount of the state money. This statement was endorsed in the form of a resolution.

"The Supreme Call for the People of America," was the subject of a patriotic address by Dr. Leslie E. Larned, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church of Pasadena. Dr. Larned is an advocate of the League of Nations.

The meeting was the last one of year. President Frank Wheeler of Claremont, who has given the organization a splendid series of programs, announced that there would be an interim during the summer when the chambers would not meet.

From the Covina city and valley at the Alhambra meeting there were present: Henry Damerel, H. V. Bright, J. L. Matthews, J. N. Hurst, Charles and Allie Hurst, and Henry Holmes.

LUXURY IN EARLY TRAVEL

"Safety Barges" instituted for those who feared hazard of voyage on Hudson River.

The frequency with which boilers blew up on the early Hudson river boats led to the use of what were known as "safety barges," and these, in their day, were considered the utmost luxury in travel, comparable to the private cars of the magnates of today. The barges were boats with main and upper decks and were almost as large as the steamers which towed them. The rabble rode on the kitchen and the freight holds, endured the noise of the engines, and took the chances of explosion, while on the barges behind the elite traveled in luxurious state. Food was brought from the boat kitchen to the barge saloon over a swaying bridge between the vessels and was served with great aplomb under the direction of the barge captain, who was a noble figure in the setting.

The upper decks of the barges were canopied and decked with flowers, with promenades and easy chairs from which to view the scenery. At night the interiors were transformed into sleeping accommodations much the same as a modern Pullman, except that they were more commodious. Not the least attractive feature of these barges, according to a chronicler of their excellence, was "an elegant bar, most sumptuously supplied with all that can be desired by the most fastidious and thirsty."

Recent news dispatches which tell of plans to establish floating cafes on the ocean just outside the three-mile territorial limit when the nation goes dry, indicate that luxurious floating establishments somewhat similar to these "safety barges" may again come into use.

SCIENTIST TELLS OF TRIUMPH

Professor Claims to Have Perfected System for Underground and Submarine Messages.

Speaking recently of his work for the navy, Prof. James R. Rogers, the inventor of a wireless system for underground and submarine transmission, stated: "Six or seven years ago, I began experiments with the transmission of electric impulses by the ground.
 They were renewed during the war with the aerial bulb, which renders the receiving apparatus more sensitive.
 I first established contact with nearby points and before long received with perfect distinctness impulses sent from Europe. I placed my antennae in trenches radiating from a center and pointing by the compass toward the distant station from which I wished to receive. I demonstrated to the navy department that eight operators may receive at once from eight separate wires. My system was installed at New Orleans, the Great Lakes station, and Belmar, N. Y., and is now used at the principal wireless stations in the United States. I have found the best results with my wires buried six feet below the surface in damp ground.
 Some of my experiments were conducted in water 25 to 50 feet deep."—Scientific

Monkey as Labor Possibility.

The pig-tailed macaque or brok of the Malays is a highly intelligent animal, and the Malays train them to pick coconuts. The modus operandi is described by R. W. C. Shelford in "A Naturalist in Borneo." A cord is fastened round the monkey's waist and it is led to the coconut palm, which it rapidly climbs. It then lays hold of a nut, and if the owner judges the fruit to be ripe for plucking he shouts to the monkey, which then twists the nut round and round till the stalk is broken and lets it fall to the ground. If the monkey catches hold of an unripe fruit the owner tugs the cord and the monkey tries another. I have seen a brok act as a very efficient fruit-picker, although the use of the cord was dispensed with altogether, the monkey being guided by the tones and inflections of his master's voice.

Burgundy at Its Best.

Burgundy wines of 1915 are reported by the most eminent connoisseurs of Paris to be the best since 1803. In fact their verdict is "perfect."

The summer of 1915 was hot, so was the autumn, with light rains now and again at exactly the right intervals. M. Mathieu, celebrated savant on the subject of wines, writes: "Since 1805 there has been no Burgundy like that of 1915 in delicacy or strength.
 The 1915 vintage is a remarkable synthesis of bouquet, aroma, body and flavor."

But of course all this is of merely academic interest to us.

Less Crime, Fewer Carpets.

There does not at first glance seem to be much connection between crime and carpets, says the London Daily Mail, but it is a fact that the decrease in crime brought about in India, as elsewhere, by the war has led to a decrease in the supply of Indian carpets. The reason is that most of these carpets, especially the finer and more expensive kinds, are made by convicts, notably in the great jail at Poona.

They are made entirely by hand, so it is a case of few convicts few carpets.

Hard to Distinguish.

"In Shakespeare's day the liver was thought to be the seat of love."
 "Maybe the Elizabethans were not so far wrong after all. The symptoms of love and an acute bilious attack are very similar."

Bake More Save More

More and more, thoughtful women are decreasing the cost of living by increasing the variety of their home baking. They have learned to bake the Royal way with fewer eggs. They have found that more baked foods mean less meat. They have further discovered that their baking keeps fresh longer when made with
